A show for under-fives with enhanced performances. (See Land of Lights 2015 for description of 'enhanced performances'). In a Pickle 2016 had the same script as in 2012. This time, Patrick Lynch directed it, with a few special differences. The sheep costumes were improved. The apparition of the palace was magical. Katherine Vernez showed the eerie awakening of the Queen to perfection. Sheema Mukherjee played the music beautifully on the sitar. A shower of rose petals accompanied the final ensemble celebratory dance (choreography by Debbie Bandara). It was so joyful that often the children joined the actors on the dance floor! This was Claire de Loon's last show for Oily Cart. Here began the transition period when the founder members handed over to a new team. "This is theatre in which
