

It is one year since the first national lockdown.

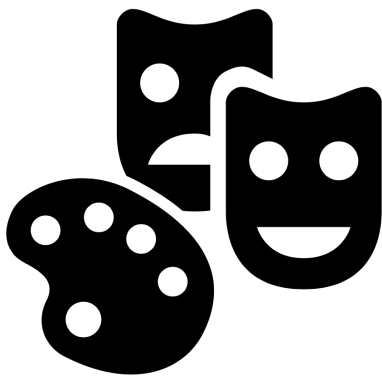

There is a vaccine to protect people against coronavirus now.

Disabled children will have a longer wait to receive the vaccine. This is still a challenging time for lots of families.

In the last year, Oily Cart has carried on making and performing theatre. We had to create theatre in new ways because of coronavirus.

We are very grateful to all the freelancers who worked with us. We know what a difficult year it has been for freelancers in the theatre industry.

Over the next year, we will keep making theatre in new ways that are Covid-safe. We won't perform in venues until disabled children, young people, and artists can be there too.

We send our love and support to families. We will keep working for and with you.
